

DTR Doctrine Original Authors & Open Source Contributors and time of employment:
2/3/23 - 6/25/24

Marino Wijay - Solo.io + KubeHuddle

Drew Debari - Acquia

Julian Jean-Pierre - Community Advisor

Guillaume Chames - Docker, MagicLeap, DTR

Alex Santana - Google Cloud Platform

Sean McMillan - Portworx by Pure Storage

Luis Hinojosa - Rockstar Games

Xavier Nicolas - CSDNET

Jim Schild - NADOG + Incredibuild

Myles Petillo - Per Scholas

Alexy Khrabrov - IBM

Andy Siegmund - Amazon Web Services

Adam de Delva - Microsoft Azure

DTR Mission:

Adam's take: To build the forge of open innovation across dev, sec, ops & AI, through community.

We Deliver: “OaaS” - “Outcomes as a Service”

1. Have fun.

If we're not having fun, communicate this. Why aren't we? What is the root cause? What do we need to improve? What we're doing should be fun. Stress is a natural part of growth, and the result - outcome / growth should be fun.

2. Focus on the customer.

Leaders focus on customer outcomes and work from there. While we are aware of our competitors, the customer is our primary focus. Remember, the customer is the only person who can fire the entire company.

3. Sustainability.

Impacting the customer, and the community the Triple bottom line,...

4. Ideas & Frameworks: need to be simple, reliable, and automatable.

5. Transparency.

Bring the finances into regular conversations Cost/earnings per employee, and similar metrics should be readily shared Everyone should think and act like an owner. Transparency about runway (Finances)

6. Honesty & Integrity. Both Major keys. What we're doing is highly disruptive. We need to move with high levels of integrity, humility and respect. Be conscious of others impacted by our innovation. Focus on the human experience, and always seek to understand how we are around it.

7. Candor.

- It's okay to fail, have backbone, own your mistakes
- Includes career path
- Be open and honest, but also not an asshole optimize for kindness over niceness
- Financial transparency

8. Attitude reflects leadership.

- Leaders should embody the behavior we expect to see in our teams

9. Develop your teams. While we seek to hire the best possible talent from the global marketplace, leaders should emphasize internal growth opportunities and promoting from within. Championship teams build talent over years, so do we.

10. Show me, don't tell me. Leaders use data to make decisions, and sellers use data to drive our business. We're in the business of customer impacts, and those should be concrete and traceable. Provide Receipts.

11. Early is on time, on time is late, late is forgotten (or fired....)

12. DE&I is our DNA. We are a black-founded company targeting a global customer base. Diversity is in our best interest, and leaders should challenge their biases, and seek to hire top talent from diverse backgrounds.

13. Empathy Ops. lead with empathy. See candor and transparency above
Responsible growth, responsible hiring, equity in pay/benefit/strategy

14. Frugality. Focus on doing more with less. Impact is not defined by size or span of control, but maximizing outcomes with minimal outputs. We value resourcefulness, scrappiness, and maintaining a start-ups underdog mentality.

15. Action precedes mood. Outcomes only come from actions, and decisions cannot be made with 100% certainty. Take calculated risks and bias for acting earlier rather than waiting for comprehensive data.

16. Silos are death. Communication across business units, titles, and organizational structures are critical to building a cohesive business. Leverage the reverse conway maneuver to optimize organizational structures and communications in line with what we are trying to achieve.

17. Three Yes / No's = iight Bro. This is the code for a simpler life. If an experience you offer is declined three times, just walk away. Don't waste more time.